THE PRESIDENT'S PAGE

The editor of the Journal has asked me to write a president's page. What I was to say was left entirely to me but she said that I might look at similar pages in the journals of other Associations. I find that the president of one large library association in her "message," gave the members a great deal of information as to the financial position of the Association, the mechanics of association management and the benefits of membership. Another president expressed her fear that she could not adequately fill the shoes of her predecessors. I shall say nothing about our finances or management, other than to say how well we are served by our secretary and treasurer and how surprisingly well the Association gets along with a minimum of management. When I look over the list of the "giants" who have preceded me in office I am more and more amazed that I should have supposed for a moment that I might be thought capable of following them.

I am not going to tell what the Executive Committee has been doing. Several of us will have to make reports at the meeting in Toronto and it would not do to anticipate. It occurs to me, however, that I should introduce our new editor, although this should have been done in her August number. As all of the members must know by this time, Harrison MacDonald who edited the Journal so acceptably for five years, resigned in June, 1951. Mrs. Bernita Davies, of the University of Illinois Law Library, Urbana, Illinois, has taken over the editorship and judging from her past work in the Association, should be just as good. She was president in 1942 and from 1947 to 1951 was chairman of the very important Joint Committee on Cooperation between the Association of American Law Schools and the American Association of Law Libraries. She achieved outstanding success in both of these positions. A resolution of appreciation for the services of our past editor was carried with enthusiasm at the Boston meeting and we all wish Mrs. Davies every success in her new position. I trust that the members of the Association will overwhelm her with suitable articles for inclusion in the Journal.

In this number appears a list of the Association committees for 1951-52. The appointment of committee members has been a long and difficult task. It has been my wish to put new members to work and the names of a good many of them appear in the list. I have found, however, that some of the old committees had unfinished work which their members should be left to do; some chairmen and representatives were so obviously the right persons for their positions that it seemed wrong to replace them; and many committee members had done such exceptionally good work in past years that I simply could not drop them. I wish to assure all those not appointed who would have liked to do committee work this year, that I would gladly have appointed them if there had been enough committees; and I have no doubt that there are many not on committees who would have been quite as useful there as the members appointed.

I appeal to members to assist the committees by bringing to the attention of the chairmen any information which might help them and suggestions as to projects which the committees might undertake. I would mention particularly the Memorials Committee and ask all members to bring to the attention of the chairman promptly notice of any deaths which may occur. Finally I shall welcome ideas of all kinds and particularly suggestions for the program of the Toronto meeting. Those who propose subjects for papers or discussions will not be "badgered" to do the work themselves.

GEO. A. JOHNSTON,
President.

THE REORGANIZATION OF THE JOHN MARSHALL LAW SCHOOL LIBRARY

FRITZ VEIT,* Supervisor of the Library

After the close of World War II, it became increasingly apparent that the library facilities were inadequate to support the School's teaching and research program. The quarters were too limited, the book and periodical collection was incomplete, and in many respects it was not geared to the School's requirements; moreover, the collection was not cataloged or otherwise recorded. A reorganization of the library's quarters, its holdings and its technical processes was urgently needed. The reorganization of the library was begun in a systematic fashion in 1949. Its successful completion was a material factor in the provisional approval of the School by the American Bar Association in September 1951.

In increasing numbers librarians, in planning for library quarters, have recognized these as considerations of primary significance: ease of access to library materials, ease of their use by library staff and library clientele, comfortable work area for the library worker, and reading rooms facilitating study and concentration. Other considerations must be subordinated to these. Appearance and style, for instance, are factors that should play an important part in planning, but functional arrangement must not be subordinated to them. Planning of the library's quarters at The John Marshall Law School has been guided by these principles, circumscribed to the extent that it had to fit into an already existing structure.

The John Marshall Law School, which was founded in 1899, spent its first 35 years in rented quarters. The School occupied the present building on May 1, 1933; on March 31, 1934 the School bought the building. It is an eight-story structure—including two mezzanine floors—which was erected in 1911; it is in the heart of the Loop, and can easily be reached by all major means of transportation.

The building houses all of the School's facilities: administrative and faculty offices, class rooms, gymnasiums, stockrooms, etc., as well as the library. When the School first occupied the building an area of about 1000 square feet on the first floor was assigned for library purposes. In 1935 the library was moved to an area of approximately 1,500 square feet on the second floor. When another increase of library space became necessary in 1938, the library was again transferred, this time to the fourth floor where an area of 2,200 square feet was remodeled for the purpose.

After World War II a major reorganization had to be planned which would more than double the library's reading room and stack capacity. The first plan, for which architect's drawings were made, was to extend the library to occupy the whole fourth floor. However, further study revealed that even a whole floor would no longer be large enough to accommodate all the projected library facilities. Therefore the library was moved from the fourth floor to the fifth floor. In this way, the sixth floor area, which was to house rarely-used books as well as duplicate copies, could be reached with very little effort from the main library on the fifth floor.

The total library area today amounts to 5,700 square feet—about 3,750 square feet on the fifth floor and about 2,000 square feet on the sixth floor. If necessary, a larger portion of the sixth floor area can be assigned to the library.

The old library had only approximately 1,800 lineal feet of wooden shelving, mostly sectional cases with glass doors. All of this equipment, and more besides, is now used on the sixth floor where the lesser-used and the duplicate books are housed. To equip the fifth floor, the main library area, about 3,000 feet of metal shelving was installed.

The fifth floor is divided into four major units:

1. The Reading Room with shelving all along the wall and one extra double-faced stack range, in the southwest corner.

2. The Library Office area, consisting of two contiguous offices of 8½ feet by 15 feet.

3. A Patent Law Library of 36 feet by 15 feet, adjacent to the east library office.

4. A stack area of about 750 square feet.

In front of the offices is an L-shaped circulation counter which has several unconventional features. For instance, it incorporates the public catalog. It also contains a built-in, fire-proof filing cabinet as well as a built-in typewriter desk. The typist, who uses a silent typewriter when working at the counter, can double as a library attendant if the need for such assistance should develop.

While it is intended that the desk attendant supervise the library, supervision can be undertaken easily from either of the two offices. Glass panels permit an unobstructed view of the library entrance and of the whole reading room area from either of the two library offices.

The library can provide reading space for about one hundred fifty students; the thirteen large tables of the main reading room can accommodate about one hundred thirty students, and the patent library, which is also accessible to students, seats about twenty. Each of the thirteen tables in the main reading room is twelve feet long, forty-two inches wide, and thirty inches high. Each of the tables has two pedestal bases with adjustment screws to permit levelling the table top in the event of possible irregularities in the floor. The colonial type armchairs have leather upholstery on arms and backs.

The aim has been to provide an atmosphere conducive to study. Good-year Wingfoot Sheet Rubber flooring has been laid over double layers of sound-deadening felt underlining. To further decrease sources of noise, the ceiling has been covered with incombustible Accoustone.

The color scheme of the library is simple, cheerful, and light. The ceiling is white shading into light gray, with olive green side walls, dark gray floor, pearl gray shelves, and birch tables and chairs in a very light walnut finish with red leather trim on the chairs.

The lighting of the library is exceptionally good. Seven large windows on the west and six on the north, all without any nearby buildings to offer interference, afford an amount of daylight quite unusual in downtown Chicago. In addition, special efforts have been made to have an artificial lighting system that would provide even, soft light throughout the whole reading room. After prolonged experimenting, the Curtis Lighting Company produced fixtures which supply indirect fluorescent light that has proven highly satisfactory and has been praised by all who have used the library. Since these fixtures have been devised especially for The John Marshall Law School Library and constitute, we believe, a unique installation among libraries, it may be well to describe them briefly. They are ten feet long, five inches wide at the top, two and one half inches wide at the bottom and three and one half inches deep. Each fixture contains two 40-watt fluorescent tubes of 4-foot length. The reflector is made of Alzak Aluminum, a low brightness source. The cut-off on the fixture is such that it does not produce any brightness of the fixture at the far end. The fixtures are surprisingly unobtrusive. They are hung on four foot centers, suspended twenty-two and one half inches from the ceiling to the bottom of the fixtures, so that the light tubes themselves are twenty inches from the ceiling.

The light throughout the reading room area amounts to an average of twenty-five foot candles on the table tops. The book cases along the walls, which are illuminated by the reading room fixtures, receive an average of about fifteen foot candles of light.

The light in the main stacks, averaging twenty foot candles, is supplied by four-foot 40-watt fluorescent tubes hung on fixtures whose reflectors are set out from the body of the fixture, so that light not only is reflected towards the shelves and down in the aisles between the shelves, but also shines up through the slits between the reflectors and the body of the fixtures to give a gentle illumination to the ceiling.

Finally, in order to prevent loss of use of chair and table space in the winter, a separate coat-room has been provided where hats, coats and brief cases may be hung on hooks equipped with a locking device. The student after locking his property on the hook, takes the key with him. Thus both theft and accidental exchanges are prevented, and the winter nuisance of wet garment deposits on furniture is eliminated.

Holdings

The character of a collection is influenced by various considerations. Above all, it is shaped by the curricular needs of the School and, more broadly, by the objectives of the School. It must, therefore, not only contain books and periodicals which are required for the basic courses, but must also be strong in fields which are stressed by the institution. If, for instance, an institution emphasizes patent law, or criminal law, or administrative law, the collection must be strong in these fields. After the basic general book needs are satisfied, attention must, therefore, be given to the requirements particular to the School.

In keeping with this policy, our primary aim has been to build up a rather complete working library which would contain all materials a student might ask for in the regular course of his studies.

Guidance in the selection of basic materials was obtained from such sources as Helen Hargrave's Manual for Law Library Inspectors,<sup>2</sup> from lists of new significant legal publications, which are issued from time to time in the LAW LIBRARY JOURNAL, from publishers' announcements, and from reviews that appear in the professional literature. All of these sources were consulted in order to obtain representative titles in all fields of law.

In general, casebooks have been acquired only if they are not limited to a collection of cases but rather include a considerable amount of explanatory material. The growing importance of periodical literature in legal research has been recognized. We were successful in filling gaps in our broken files and in completing a rather large number of sets. Only two or three periodical sets were unbroken when the reorganization began. Now the library has twenty-eight complete and thirty nearly complete sets of periodicals. The periodical collection comprises the magazines which are considered leading throughout the nation, as well as those which are of regional or local appeal, and those which are particularly important to the School's teaching and research program. We are continuing our efforts to complete sets which we have decided to preserve. We have prepared want lists and lists of our duplicates, and we hope that we can obtain, on an exchange basis, a good number of periodical issues which we lack.

Since patent law is one of the subjects in which advanced training is offered by the School, we have endeavored to build up a strong collection in this field. We have solicited the advice not only of our own patent law faculty but of well known practitioners. We have submitted to these experts lists of our patent law holdings, with the request that they forward to us suggestions for acquisitions and that they send us any of their duplicates which they consider useful to our collection. The specialists whose advice was sought agreed that the library now includes most of the leading titles in the patent law field, and few suggestions for new acquisitions were received.

Book selection policy is influenced by the library materials available in other libraries of the area, especially when several local libraries have already assumed the responsibility for the acquisition of certain rarely used items. The University of Chicago, Northwestern University, The Chicago Bar Association and The Chicago Law Institute have devoted much of their time to building up special collections. It would be uneconomical to spend library funds of John Marshall for the acquisition of British Dominion law reports, for instance, if the University of Chicago has a complete file on its shelves and is prepared to make them available on inter-library loan to any student of the Chicago region. If John Marshall should acquire, by gift, materials in areas which are the primary concern of another local library, the School would offer such materials to the collecting library in order that that library might complete its files.

As to the home state of Illinois, John Marshall strives toward completeness. The School intends to collect and maintain complete runs of session laws, codes, court reports, and decisions of state administrative authorities, as well as other state material of legal interest. The School is likewise concerned with legal publications issued by or for the City of Chicago. Furthermore, since prior law practice has been a prerequisite for appointments to the faculty of the School, the library intends to provide a representative collection of texts relating to the actual practice of the law.

Processing

Since the collection was uncataloged and unclassified, the library was free to choose the classification scheme best suited to its purposes. John Marshall was in a more favorable position than many other libraries which are engaged in a reorganizing process. Often such libraries have to retain a scheme already in use, since the cost and effort involved in reclassifying and recataloging would exceed the benefit derived from the installation of a superior scheme.

We sought an answer to the question, "Which system is most advantageous to the purposes of the School?" Should the collection be classified narrowly or broadly, or should it not be classified at all? Law library literature has never offered a united front in answer to this question. Advantages can be cited by the protagonists of each view. In arriving at a decision we took in consideration the probable future growth of the collection. We had reason to assume that it would always remain of medium size. In establishing a policy we aimed also toward technical processes that would be as simple as compatible with facility of use of the materials.

On the basis of all of these considerations we decided on a broad classification. The problem which we found most difficult to decide concerned the text books. Should the Anglo-American treatises be further subdivided according to subject; or should all Anglo-American treatises be assigned to one class and be arranged alphabetically within the class? After some experimenting with both schemes we chose the classification which places all Anglo-American treatises together in one class, Cutter numbers providing the alphabetic arrangement within the class, and title letters producing the differentiation for several writings of one author. We are relying on our card catalog for the subject approach. This scheme seems to work very well in The John Marshall Law School Library.

The classification adopted by the School is a composite product. This author profited greatly from examining various schemes, and he utilized, of course, his own cataloging and administrative experience in various law libraries. The classification scheme to which the John Marshall scheme owes most is the one in use at Northwestern University Law Library.

Whenever obtainable, Library of Congress cards are used. It is our policy to deviate as little as possible from the subject headings suggested on the Library of Congress cards. However, the suggested headings are not being followed slavishly since the Library of Congress cards are primarily intended for a collection which embraces all fields of knowledge, not merely law. For instance, Library of Congress cards frequently suggest the use of the word "law." Reference to this term may be omitted in a collection which, as at John Marshall, contains nearly exclusively legal materials.

Frequently the Library of Congress cards have given recognition, by means of an added entry, to editorial assistants, revisers and others who have contributed to a publication in a minor way. Such a liberal policy of recognition is especially noticeable in the case of state codes. The John Marshall Law School Library omits this type of added entries because they are not needed here.

Several publications issued by members of the Columbia University Law School Library have proved invaluable in helping us in the establishment of a cataloging and classification policy. They are Subject Headings in Anglo-American and International Law Used in the Dictionary Catalog of the Columbia University Law Library, compiled under the direction of Miles O. Price;<sup>3</sup> A Catalog for a Law Library of 15,000 Volumes, compiled by Miles O. Price;<sup>4</sup> and A Cataloging Manual for Law Libraries, by Elsie Basset.<sup>5</sup>

In cataloging and classifying the collection, the aim has been throughout to omit data not needed in a medium-sized law school library. A case in point is the information relating to a set which covers several cards. The complete set of cards is used for the author entry only; for the added entries, card one only is used. The added entries then receive pertinent notes such as: "See author card for complete contents note," or "See author card for supplements to above."

Problems of law library reorganization quite similar to ours have been faced by other institutions. Mr. Oscar C. Orman presents an interesting account of the reorganization of a law library which served a university-connected law school.<sup>6</sup>

In the field of processing, especially, our experience has been very similar to Mr. Orman's. As at Baylor University, at John Marshall first of all stock was taken of the holdings. Duplicates, superseded, and extraneous materials were immediately discarded; and worn-out materials that were still in demand were replaced.

The Library of Congress cards for as many titles as possible were ordered here, as at Baylor. However, in our situation it was not always found practicable to obtain the order number for the Library of Congress card order slips. The School does not need a United States Catalog and its supplement, The Cumulative Book Index, the sources which supply Library of Congress card order numbers. Library of Congress cards were therefore ordered by author and title. An exception was made for books published before 1942; Miles O. Price's Catalog for a Law Library of 15,000 Volumes<sup>7</sup> was frequently consulted for these earlier titles. Library of Congress order numbers were copied from the cards in Price's Catalog. In cases in which we could not supply the Library of Congress card order number, we gave as full information as the Library of Congress requested—author, title, publisher, date of publication, edition, etc.—and we have found that the Card Division has done an excellent job in filling these orders correctly.

We have deviated in another respect from the processing procedure suggested by Mr. Orman. We agree with Mr. Orman that it is extremely important to have a shelf list. However, the connection between shelf-list card and the corresponding set of catalog cards seems more immediately clear if a card that is identical with the catalog card serves as a shelf-list card. For this reason we use Library of Congress cards rather than handwritten or typed cards as permanent shelf-list cards.

Arrangement of Books

The books have been arranged in such a way as to bring the most frequently used items closest to the users. On the shelves along the Reading Room walls are the various United States Reports, the Federal Reporter and the Federal Supplement, followed by reports of the Illinois Supreme and Appellate Courts. The Northeastern Reporter, which includes the Illinois Reports, is next in order. The various current Illinois codes and digests also are placed in the Reading Room area.

The Reading Room contains further The American Digest System, Corpus Juris, Corpus Juris Secundum and American Jurisprudence. On low shelves in front of the North Office are numerous reference books such as the Encyclopedia Britannica, Words and Phrases and other legal and non-legal dictionaries, and directories of various kinds.

The section of the main stack area immediately behind the charging desk houses treatises. The main stack area contains also the Reporter System, with the exception of the Northeastern Reporter, the Federal Reporter and the Federal Supplement, which are shelved along the walls of the Reading Room. The most recent codes of the various American states, with the exception of that of Illinois, which is found in the Reading Room, comprise another category of books placed in the main stacks. Also shelved in the main stacks are a complete set of the Restatements of the American Law Institute; The English Law Reports, and the English Reprints and pertinent digests of English materials.

The room which is set off as the Patent Room contains most of our patent materials regardless of form. Since the stack space in the Patent Room is not fully required for housing patent materials, this Room serves also as the periodical room. The Patent Room can be locked, and free access to the patent materials and periodicals can be barred if we should ever wish to change our open stack policy with regard to these materials.

As has been mentioned earlier, rarely-used books and duplicates are housed on the sixth floor. State reports, decisions of administrative authorities, old or superseded treatises, and the early volumes of such bulky periodicals as the Official Gazette of the U. S. Patent Office, are the principal categories on the sixth floor. All sixth-floor materials are recorded in our catalog and may be requested at any time through a library attendant.

Conclusions and Recommendations

The goal of the reorganization has been to make the library an effective instrument of the educational program of the School. This goal seems to have been practically reached.

The student now is able to work in an atmosphere conducive to study. The seating capacity has been doubled; noisy, crowded quarters have been transformed into an attractive, spacious, airy and well lighted Reading Room.

The holdings, likewise, have been more than doubled, from about 8,000 including duplicates to 16,000 volumes excluding duplicates. All materials considered basic for any general law school curriculum have been obtained; for most categories of books, minimum requirements have been exceeded. In addition, materials to support special programs, such as the patent law program, have been obtained. A good number of significant quasi-legal and non-legal works have been acquired, to give the student the opportunity to reach beyond the narrow limits of his prescribed study.

The catalog and the serial record provide an easy, multi-faceted approach to the Library's resources. These aids will make possible an intensified utilization of all library materials.

The Library is committed to further progress. It will make its resources better known to the students and to the faculty than has been the case up to now; it will continue to display prominently new books of general interest; it will assist instructors in the preparation of reading lists; it will issue at regular intervals lists of new acquisitions. It will strive to become indispensable not only to some faculty members, but to all; not only to some students, but to the whole student body.

MEMORIAL

Evan Jones, 1877-1951

EVAN JONES was born at Mt. Adams, Cincinnati, Ohio, August 18, 1877 and was educated in the elementary and high schools of that city, later studying college and legal subjects at night.

While still in his teens, he entered the employ of the W. H. Anderson Company at Cincinnati where his older brother, Hugh, was already a successful salesman. He soon became a law book salesman under his brother's tutelage and for years traveled the mid-west, making a wide acquaintance throughout the Bar and earning an enviable reputation for industry, sincerity and integrity—qualities which distinguished him throughout his entire life.

After some years he left the Anderson Company to accept a position with the Lawyers' Co-operative Publishing Company and later with the American Law Book Company, residing during these years in New York and New Jersey. His experience as salesman, sales manager, and in the training of sales staffs gave him the thorough knowledge of law books that his colleagues respected as exceeded by no one in the field.

In 1921, EVAN JONES came to Washington, D. C., and shortly thereafter founded the National Law Book Company, which, by reason of the rich background of experience and the high standards of service he brought to it, prospered until his death.

In 1912, he married Miss Bonnylin Cooley, of Elwood, Indiana, who passed away in 1945. There were no children of this union.

As a young man, EVAN JONES joined the ancient and accepted Order of Free Masons, and was an enthusiastic Scottish Rite Mason and Noble of the Order of the Mystic Shrine throughout the rest of his life. At the time of his death, he was Treasurer of Almas Temple, Order of the Mystic Shrine, a Knight Commander of the Court of Honor, Scottish Rite Consistory, Master of Evangelist Chapter, Scottish Rite, Director of Cast of both Almas Temple and the Scottish Rite Temple, and held many other active and honorary Masonic offices.

In 1949, he was coroneted a thirty-third degree Mason, one of the highest honors the Order could bestow. On June 9, 1951, the signal distinction was conferred upon him of having the Spring Class of candidates for the Order of the Mystic Shrine named the EVAN JONES CLASS, a tribute seldom paid to a living man.

Throughout his long and active life, EVAN JONES maintained his interest in the fine arts and the drama, of which he was a devoted student. His tragic death terminated a life full of honors and achievements. He was beloved by a host of friends who mourn him sincerely as one who upheld the finest traditions of honorable and kindly living.

BOOK REVIEWS

A Practical Manual of Standard Legal Citations, by Miles O. Price. New York. Oceana Publications, 1950. Pp. 106. $2.00.

Miles O. Price, Librarian of Columbia University Law Library, has made a real contribution in the field of legal bibliography by his publication A Practical Manual of Standard Legal Citations. The fact that the Manual is already in its second printing is ample evidence that it fills a definite need—a long-existing need.

The pioneer citation manual A Uniform System of Citation, Form of Citation and Abbreviations, a joint publication of the law reviews of Columbia, Harvard, Pennsylvania and Yale, is designed for law review practice. Mr. Price's publication is the first comprehensive manual for general guidance and, as the title states, contains "rules, rationale and examples of citations to authority for lawyers, law students, teachers and research workers." It is a clear, logical and concise presentation of legal citations, with sufficient detail and examples given under each category of material to render practically unnecessary resort to other sources. For example, pages 18 to 22 are devoted to session law and statute citations for all states and pages 36 to 43 are on Federal Administrative Agency Rulings as Cited by the Agencies Themselves. It is these two portions of the Manual that were revised in the second printing and those working with these materials will find the changes significant.

Mr. Price goes beyond the scope of the traditional citation manual. In many instances the nature and historical background of the publications cited are given and it is because of these descriptive statements that one can appreciate the "rationale" for the preferred forms of citations and the necessity of giving a precise and adequate form of citation if confusion, ambiguity and loss of time are to be eliminated. To illustrate, Mr. Price has this to say about case reports:

"The manner of publishing a case report is important in citation. Cases cited as authority may be unpublished, or published in newspapers, legal newspapers, slip decisions, advance sheets or bound volumes. They also appear in loose-leaf services. Reports may be official or unofficial, and it is customary to cite both in most courts except the United States Supreme Court, where only the official reports of Federal courts are preferred. Cite the bound volumes if available."

It then becomes clear why, in the case of United States Supreme Court Reports, where Mr. Price indicates six different forms of citations, he has the statement opposite one form "most useful but never seen."

According to the Manual, a good citation should be intelligible; it should possess a recognizable meaning and a parallel citation. Also, sufficiency should never be sacrificed for mere form. These and other rules are found throughout the Manual and as Mr. Price states in the preface they are "believed to be based upon common sense, and to be easily comprehended and remembered."

However, I should like to comment on Mr. Price's preferred forms of citations in the matter of Presidential documents i.e., Executive Orders, Proclamations and Reorganization Plans, the printing of which is the responsibility of the Federal Register Division, National Archives and Records Service, General Services Administration.

It is to be noted that the regulations prescribed by the Administrative Committee of the Federal Register and governing the Governmental agencies in citing authorities, designate the first and Mr. Price suggests the second of the following forms of citations:

Executive Order: E. O. 10150, Aug. 11, 1950, 15 F. R. 5219, 3 CFR, 1950 Supp. (Manual): Exec. Order No. 10150, 15 Fed. Reg. 5219 (1950)

I believe that that part of the Administrative Committee form giving the full date and parallel citation is preferable and in keeping with the rules of the Manual but by the same token I prefer the Manual forms "Exec. Order" for "E. O." and "Fed. Reg." for "F. R." because they make for "recognizable meaning."

Proclamations: Proc. 2824, Jan. 25, 1949, 14 F. R. 361; 3 CFR, 1949 Supp. (Manual): Proc. No. 2824, 63 Stat. 1257 (1949)

Here again the Committee form should be considered because it provides a citation to a primary source (an element of a good citation according to the Manual) i.e. Federal Register which citation is available almost immediately upon issuance of the Proclamation and far in advance of the Statutes at Large.

Reorganization Plans: Reorg. Pl. No. 7 of 1949, 14 F. R. 5228, 63 Stat. 1070 (Manual): Reorg. Pl. No. 7 of 1949, 63 Stat. 1070 (1949)

Since the 1939 and 1949 Reorganization Acts provide for the printing of the Reorganization Plans in the Statutes at Large and the Federal Register, the Committee form provides a citation to a primary source for recent material.

And while referring to the General Services Administration in connection with citations I shall digress a little to call attention to a very worth while project recently instigated in that field. To save costly research analysis on the part of all who work with current or slip laws, Mr. Merrill S. Potts, Chief of the Statutes Section of the Federal Register Division, instituted a procedure calling for the printing of citations, notes and statute references in the margin of the slip laws. Two important laws of the 82nd Congress namely, the Trade Agreements Extension Act of 1951, 65 Stat. 72, and the Universal Military Training and Service Act, 65 Stat. 75, were singled out as an experiment for the publication of these marginal notes. Because the reception was very gratifying, it is contemplated that beginning with the second session of the 82nd Congress, all slip laws will contain these notes.

Also, Mr. Price, in describing the procedure on the enactment of the law states on page one:

"When the proposed Act or Joint or Concurrent Resolution has passed one house, all or most of the same process is gone through in the other house, as a result of which Conference Committees are appointed by each house to iron out differences. The Conference Report is ordinarily incorporated into the printed Report of one or both committees, and a final vote had."

The majority of bills enacted into law are not referred to conference although the matter of referring legislation to conference is usual in the case of appropriation measures. If the first House is not willing to accept the amendments of the second House, a conference committee composed of members of both Houses is appointed. If the Committee of conference come to an agreement they report the bill out of conference and the Conference Report (usually printed as a House Report) is then voted on by both Houses. There may be more than one Conference Report.

In summing up, I venture to say that much legal and legally-related material i.e., court decisions, executive documents, and administrative opinions and regulations having a direct bearing on the political, social and economic aspects of our lives, is either completely locked-up or not readily accessible to research workers because there is lacking an intelligible and practicable uniform system of citations. For this reason I believe, and in this I think I share the opinion of all those who have carefully examined the Manual, that it is a very valuable publication and should be generally adopted by public and private agencies. Because of it, I am sure that Mr. Price has earned the eternal gratitude of all who work and deal with the law.

The Hittite Laws, Translated into English and Hebrew with Commentary, by E. Neufeld. London: Luzac & Co., Ltd. 1951. Pp. 209 + 50 plates. 35 shillings.

"How it began" is always fascinating! How law began is peculiarly attractive to law librarians. It is a serious hobby with me. I know it's serious, because my wife says that when I get started on it I monopolize the conversation. Though law is one of the oldest subjects in the world, we have learned more of its origin in the last half century than in all the previous millenia of history. One of the oldest subjects in the world is one of the newest sciences. Our knowledge of the subject is growing almost daily. The number of recent works, in English, dealing with primitive law are limited. Dr. Neufeld's translation of the Hittite laws, with full commentaries on each section, is (so far as I know) the first recent, detailed study in English, of any of the ancient, eastern codes, such as Hammurabi's, the Middle-Assyrian, the biblical Code of the Covenant, and the Hittite. These cuneiform laws, the earliest known to man, came down to us from the Fertile Crescent which reached from the Tigris-Euphrates valley northward to Asia Minor then southward through Palestine.

Hammurabi's Babylonian laws were found at Susa in 1904. Until the laws of the little city-states of Sumerian Lipit-Ishtar and Akkadian Eshnunna were found recently, Hammurabi's laws were the oldest known to us. These two were contributing forerunners of the Babylonian laws and carried back our chain of legal history to about 2000 B. C. As Abraham came from Sumerian Ur at about this period or a little earlier, an early contact was made between the Mesopotamian and the Hebrew legal traditions. The ethical and moral conceptions of Hebrew Old Testament law have contributed heavily to modern Anglo-American law. Both writing and law appeared to have been born in Sumer, located in what is now southern Iraq.

The Hittite laws are especially interesting, because they are the most northern of the ancient, eastern codes and thus were the closest to the European tradition and, because they are the oldest laws of an Aryan-speaking people, the language group from which our European languages were derived. They are the oldest laws in the Indo-European tradition as opposed to the Babylonian (Sumero-Akkadian) group. These copies are tablets and date from about 1300 B. C., but, in many instances, they give the old law followed by the new revision reflecting not only the Hittite law in the time of Moses but the earlier law as well. The "new" revision probably dates from about 1500 B. C., a period of internal and social reform among the Hittites. The "new" revision reflected a reduction in the severity of punishments and a marked tendency to convert crimes into civil claims discharged by compensation. These laws are neither a law-text nor a code of statutes; they are really what we would call today a digest.

These laws, pieced together into two tablets covering nearly 200 sections, were uncovered by Winckler at Bogazkoy in Central Anatolia a year or two after de Morgan found Hammurabi's laws. Known for four decades, good English translations have only recently appeared, as the Hittite language was unknown when the laws were found. Cuneiform script, pressed with a triangle-pointed stylus in damp clay, had come from old Sumer where it early succeeded pictographs, the picture-writing of the dawn of civilization. The Hittite writing has many Sumerian and Akkadian signs and words showing contacts with the older civilizations to the south; it may be read, largely, as if it were Babylonian.

Dr. Neufeld thinks the Hittite laws reflect a more advanced culture than the early Mosaic laws but a simpler one than Hammurabi's code. Dr. Diamond, in his Primitive Law, considers the Hittite laws as more primitive than the Mosaic laws; and although he may not sufficiently weigh the later revision of the Hittite laws, I agree with Dr. Diamond. Most of the code is penal (a frequent earmark of archaic laws) with emphasis upon theft, incest, and injuries to persons. The penalty is usually compensation; for example, in a homicide one to four "persons" were surrendered in payment. In the class society, different punishments were given lords, freemen and slaves. Marriage by purchase is dealt with in some detail and there were at least consent divorces; but there is no general law of the family or inheritance and little on commerce, sales and real property (except as to feudal tenures). The stress laid upon crops, vineyards, cultivated land and domestic animals marks an agricultural society, and the price-fixing schedules for wages, animal hire and animal value indicate a strictly regimented one. Black magic and sorcery were prohibited; for example, "If a free man kills a serpent and pronounces the name of another man, he shall give one maneh of silver; if he is a slave, that one shall die." (Sect. 170)

Separate tables listing every reference to the other ancient, eastern laws (including the Old Testament) and an excellent, detailed general index, add tremendously to the value of the book for reference purposes. The fifty pages of photographic plates make it a treasure to the cuneiform scholar wishing to make his own translations and interpretations. It unlocks for the general reader our oldest legal heritage (apparently an independent one) from the early Indo-European tradition which was to dominate the westward march of civilization for three thousand years. It is valuable as reflecting the law of a people standing on the fringe of civilization, having elementary ideas of property from their nomadic and agricultural past but just beginning to discover trade and commerce as their habitations become fixed. The blending of Aryan influences from the Hittites, and Sumerian and Semitic cultures from Mesopotamia (possibly through Abraham) as the background of the Mosaic laws of the Old Testament, offers an interesting problem. Many librarians will find, as I have, that the study of the dawn of law in the Western world is an exciting, intellectual adventure. Not the least pleasant surprise to me was the signature to the Hittite laws, "Hanikuwilis, the scribe, Gardener's son, grandson of Lu chief of the scribes . . . has written this." More than three thousand years later a member of the family is still scribbling in the law!

CURRENT COMMENTS

Report of the Nominating Committee, 1951-52

Pursuant to Article III, Section 1 of the By-laws of the American Association of Law Libraries, I hereby notify the membership of the Association of the Report of the Nominating Committee which I have this day received together with the written acceptance of the candidates:

For President-Elect—Lucile Elliott, Law Librarian of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

For Secretary—Frances Farmer, Librarian, University of Virginia Law Library, Charlottesville, Virginia.

For Treasurer—Elizabeth Finley, Librarian, Covington & Burling, 701 Union Trust Building, Washington 5, D. C.

For the Executive Board (one to be elected)—A. Mercer Daniel, Law Librarian, Howard University, Washington, D. C.; Ervin H. Pollack, Law Librarian, Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.

Miss Helen Newman, Librarian of the Supreme Court of the United States, the Chairman of the Nominating Committee, expressed appreciation for the fine coöperation of the members of the Committee: Cyril L. McDermott, Librarian, St. John's University School of Law, 96 Schermerhorn St., Brooklyn 2, New York; Louis Piacenza, Librarian, School of Law, University of California, 405 Hilgard Ave., Los Angeles 24, California; Vera Woeste, Librarian, Cincinnati Law Library Association, Court House, Cincinnati, Ohio; and Ella May Thornton, Librarian, Georgia State Library, Atlanta 3, Georgia.

Respectfully submitted to the membership,
December 8, 1951.

GEO. A. JOHNSTON,
President.

Apologies to Miss Kernan

In the May, 1951, issue of the LAW LIBRARY JOURNAL appeared a most interesting article on "Library-Faculty Relationships in a Small Law School Library." Perhaps some of the JOURNAL readers, intrigued, as we were, because the author was unidentified, were able to detect the writer's name from the content of the article. Those who weren't able to reach the correct solution will be glad to know that the credit is due Miss Mary Anne Kernan, Librarian, Lamar School of Law, Emory University. Miss Kernan's name as author was unintentionally omitted.

Windsor Lectures

The third annual Phineas L. Windsor Lectures in Librarianship were delivered October 18-19, 1951, on the subject, "English Books of the Nineteenth Century."

Three distinguished scholars in English bibliography were appointed to the lectureship for the current year. They are: John Carter, Director of Scribner's in London; Carl Weber, Roberts Professor of English Literature in Colby College, Maine; and Gordon Ray, Head of the English Department of the University of Illinois.

The Windsor Lectures were established in 1949 to honor Phineas L. Windsor who had retired in 1940 after thirty-one years as Director of the University of Illinois Library and Library School. The lectures are published in book form. Three Lantern Slides by John T. Winterich appeared in 1949. Bibliography in an Age of Science by Louis Ridenour, Ralph Shaw, and Albert Hill was published in 1950.

Librarians Receive Recognition

"Former Librarian is cited by AALL" was the head-line of an article in the Times-Picayune of New Orleans when Mrs. Alice Magee Brunot returned home after attending the forty-fourth annual meeting of the American Association of Law Libraries in Boston. The paper featured a picture of Mrs. Brunot reading the citation which she had recently received and in the accompanying biographical sketch, spoke very highly of her as a person and librarian.

Miss Margaret Brosnan has been appointed to succeed Miss Wilma Dewey at the University of California, School of Law Library at Los Angeles, California. Miss Brosnan, who is a graduate of the University of Connecticut Law School and Columbia University Library School will be in charge of the bibliographic and technical aspects of Acquisitions.

Miss Dewey resigned to become a civilian employee in the Army Special Services Office and is now Army Librarian at the Berlin Military Post.

New York University Law Center

Three attractive pamphlets were compiled for the dedication of the Arthur T. Vanderbilt Hall as the Law Center of New York University: an Annotated Reading List for Prospective Lawyers; List of Books from the Law Collection of Jerome Sayles Hess exhibited at the Library of the School of Law. . . .; and Bibliography of the Exhibition including publications of the faculty and of the School. An article describing the Law Center and its library is planned for publication in the JOURNAL later in the year.

Puerto Rican Laws

William Stern, Chairman of the Foreign Law Committee has called attention to the combined 1951 issue of the Revista de Derecho Legislación y Jurisprudencia del Colegio de Abogados de Puerto Rico in which is published an index of one hundred laws of Puerto Rico, together with their amendments to August 8, 1951, compiled in Spanish by Marco Antonio Rigau. This is of particular value since the latest compilation of Puerto Rican laws is that of 1941 with 1943 supplement.

Interim Supplement Now in Second Year

The Interim Supplement to the Index to Legal Periodicals is now in its second year. It is issued every three weeks and indexes more legal periodicals than the Index to Legal Periodicals as well as government documents and material on international law not found indexed in the Index to Legal Periodicals. Subscriptions are still available on a volume basis. Orders should be sent to Fred B. Rothman and Company, 200 Canal Street, New York 13, N. Y.

New Membership List

The Bureau of National Affairs has very kindly printed a new edition of the A.A.L.L. membership list, corrected to October 15th. Copies have been mailed to all members and additional copies may be purchased from the Treasurer for $1.00 per copy.

As changes in personnel are reported to the Treasurer, and as new members join the Association, amendments to the list will be reported in the JOURNAL.

A. A. L. L. 1952 Meeting

The forty-fifth annual meeting of the American Association of Law Libraries will be held in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, Canada, July 7-10, 1952.

Ohio Associated Institute

The first annual Law Library Institute of the Ohio Association of Law Libraries was held at the Ohio State University, College of Law Library, in Columbus, on September 14 and 15, 1951. It was attended by twenty law librarians from Ohio and surrounding states. The Institute considered the following phases of law library cataloging: choice of entries, subject headings, descriptive cataloging, classification and treatment of non-book material. Mr. Robert A. Mace, Assistant Librarian of the University of Cincinnati Law Library, led the discussion on the treatment of non-book material and Miss Pauline A. Carleton, Catalog Librarian of the Ohio State University Law Library, conducted the other sessions. The Institute was geared to a consideration of the more basic and elementary principles of cataloging since the majority in attendance had little or no professional catalog training. A tentative manual on some aspects of law library cataloging, prepared by Miss Carleton, was distributed at the meeting. The plan is to integrate it into the proceedings of the Institute for future publication in the LAW LIBRARY JOURNAL.

Midwest Inter-Library Center Dedicated

The new Midwest Inter-Library Center building was dedicated on Friday afternoon, October 5. The ribbon-cutting ceremony took place at 2:15 before 150 guests, who afterwards assembled in the office space of the Center and listened to four papers comprising a symposium on inter-library cooperation.

William T. Middlebrook, vice president of the University of Minnesota and chairman of the Board of Directors of the Midwest Inter-Library Corporation, cut the ribbon. He was assisted by Dean Mark Ingraham of the University of Wisconsin and vice-chairman of the Board of MILC, and Ralph T. Esterquest, director of the Center. Symbolic of the inter-institutional nature of the Center, the ribbon was hung with fifteen pennants—each of the participating universities being represented. Background music consisted of the songs of the participating universities.

Speakers on the symposium program were former University of Chicago President Ernest C. Colwell, now visiting professor at Emory University, who spoke on inter-university cooperation. He was followed by Keyes D. Metcalf, Librarian of Harvard, who spoke on inter-library cooperation in the future. The third speaker was Theodore C. Blegen, Dean of the Graduate School of the University of Minnesota, who spoke on "The Scholar Looks at Inter-Library Cooperation." A summing up by Ralph E. Ellsworth, Librarian of the State University of Iowa, was entitled "The Task of the Midwest Inter-Library Center."

The complete text of the symposium papers will be published in the next issue of Library Quarterly.

Following the symposium the 150 guests, representing universities and libraries throughout the Middle West and beyond, inspected the new building.

The day's festivities were concluded in the evening when 90 guests of the Center gathered for dinner at the Quadrangle Club, a few blocks east of the Center.

Chicago Association of Law Libraries

At the annual meeting of the Chicago Association of Law Libraries held on May 17, 1951, the following officers were elected:

President, Mrs. Virginia Dunlap
University of Chicago Law School Library
Vice President, Mrs. Anne Paulson
Librarian of the Railroad Retirement Board
Secretary-Treasurer, Dorothy Scarborough
Northwestern University Law School Library
Members-at-Large of the Executive Committee:
Rev. Redmond Burke
Director of Libraries, De Paul University
Kurt Schwerin
Northwestern University Law School Library

During the discussion of chapter activities at the forty-fourth annual meeting of the American Association of Law Libraries in Boston, marked interest was shown in the use and loan policy of the Chicago Association. The text of its policy follows.

USE AND LOAN POLICY IN EFFECT BETWEEN MEMBER LIBRARIES

Chicago Association of Law Libraries

Although each member library is expected to assume the full responsibility for the usual library service required by the persons it is organized to serve, full utilization of the combined resources of the law libraries in the Chicago area indicates the advisability of supplementing the services of each individual library by making available to all the resources of every library in the area for occasional use and to the extent that specific materials are not otherwise available for the use of a particular reader. For example, it is assumed that law students will use their own law school libraries for all regular study and will need to use the resources of another library only for some special piece of research work. Likewise, lawyers are expected to use their own libraries except when they need materials that are only available in another library.

This use and loan policy is an integral part of the coöperative program now in effect between the law libraries in the Chicago area. Briefly stated, this policy is as follows.

A. Use of Other Libraries

Each library will permit any person to whom another member library is responsible for library service to use its library for the purpose of referring to materials not otherwise available to him, provided such person is identified either by phone, by letter or by another referral notice and his need is stated to be one that cannot be met by the library which is primarily responsible for service to him. This formality is required in order to prevent any abuse of the privilege.

B. Inter-Library Loans

Ordinarily any book requested will be loaned unless it is in such constant use that it cannot be spared or it would be so difficult to replace that the risk of loss cannot be taken. While such books are usually volumes not found in the collection of the borrowing library loans will, if possible, also be made to meet emergency situations as, for example, when a volume is misplaced or it has been sent out to be bound.

Although no definite rules are established as to the length of time for which books may be borrowed they should, in the absence of a definite time specified by the lending library, be returned as promptly as is practicable. Where materials are needed for extended use a definite arrangement should be made between the libraries involved.

Unless the lending library specifically requests that the loaned book be used within the quarters of the borrowing library the latter may follow its own policy in respect to this matter. The borrowing library assumes all responsibility for the return of the borrowed book.

C. Direct Loans

Occasionally a person seeks to borrow a book from a library which is not responsible to him for service. In such cases identification by the library to which he should look for service is helpful and may be a determining factor in reaching a decision to make a direct loan. Although in such loans the lending library assumes all responsibility the identifying library will, if it becomes necessary, assist if it can in securing the return of a book that has been borrowed.

Exception: The University of Chicago Library rules restrict loans to registered students, employees and holders of Ph.D. degrees from that University. The Chicago-Kent College of Law rules restrict loans to faculty members and registered students.

However, a library may borrow books in its own name on inter-library loan and make these books available to individuals for whom it assumes responsibility for service.

Carolina Association Meeting

A meeting of the Carolina Law Library Association was held jointly at Duke University in Durham and the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill on October 20. The principal topic for discussion concerned the expansion of the Carolina group into a southeastern organization. Other subjects for consideration were: needed constitutional changes in the charter of the Carolina Chapter to permit enlargement of the group, and a review of the growth of North Carolina Bar Libraries. Guests from Georgia and Virginia as well as South Carolina and North Carolina attended. Following the meeting a luncheon was held in the Duke Union. A tour of the new University of North Carolina Law Library was conducted in the afternoon and on the night of October 20 a grill supper was served. Entertainment was furnished by Forrest Covington, well known Carolina folk singer. About fifteen law librarians were present for this meeting.

Due to the illness of Miss Sarah Leverette, of the University of South Carolina, Secretary-Treasurer of the Chapter, Mr. Marvin Hogan, of Chapel Hill, acted in her stead. Miss Ruth Corry, Chapter President, presided assisted by Miss Marianna Long, of the Duke University Law Library.

New Digest Volumes

Law librarians will be interested in a letter from Mr. Harvey T. Reed of the West Publishing Co. in which he called attention to several new volumes and topics in the American Digest System. Mr. Reed wrote as follows:

"Information which came to me this morning leads me to believe, perhaps that we have been somewhat remiss in not pointing out to our good friends, the librarians, that there is a complete new American Digest topic Labor Relations in Volumes 43A and 43B of the Federal Digest.

"From the librarian's point of view, these volumes are important, because Volume 43A contains a complete Table of Cases covering all Labor Relations Decisions from earliest time (pages 1-79). Also, in the back of Volume 43B will be found a complete text of the Labor Management Relations Law with all amendments to date. We felt that the text of the Statute taken from U. S. C. A. would be helpful.

"In the General Digest of October, 1951, for the first time appeared a complete analysis of the new American Digest topic, Social Security, and also for the first time appeared the complete analysis of the topic Labor Relations.

"I earnestly hope that the coöperation, which has existed between the librarians and the law book publishers, over the last several years will be continued and increased.

"On our part, we appreciate the tremendous work, which the librarians and the National Association is doing, and offer at all times fullest coöperation, realizing they both serve the legal profession."

Cordially yours,
/s/ HARVEY T. REID

CHARLES ZINN ADDRESSES LAW LIBRARIANS' SOCIETY OF WASHINGTON, D. C.

Charles J. Zinn, Law Revision Counsel to the House Committee on the Judiciary, spoke at the November fourteenth dinner meeting of the Law Librarians' Society of Washington, D. C., held in the Dodge Hotel at 6:30 p. m. Following Mr. Zinn's address, Miss Lois Moore, Librarian of the Tax Court and President of the Chapter, announced the second supplement to the 1935 Index of Congressional Committee Hearings, compiled by George T. Walker of the staff of the Senate Library. This supplement covers the period January 3, 1941 to January 3, 1951.

Miss Moore also announced the publication of "Elements of Soviet Labor Law" by Dr. Vladimir Gsovski, Chief of the Foreign Law Section of the Library of Congress. First appearing as a series of articles in the April and May 1951 issues of the Monthly Labor Review, abstracts of these articles were given wide circulation in leading newspapers including the New York Times, the Christian Science Monitor and in the magazine, World Affairs. Upon motion of Senator Paul Douglas it was reprinted in the appendix to the Congressional Record, Volume 97, No. 61, A1886. The State Department made separate reprints of the article, which according to information received by the author, were sent to ninety-two countries. The article was also reprinted as Bulletin No. 1026 of the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States Department of Labor, and as House Document No. 128 of the eighty-second Congress.

Miss Helen Newman, a past President of the Chapter, announced the thirteen volume Tax Court Digest, compiled and edited by Miss Lois Moore. Miss Moore has had long experience in tax matters, having served as Librarian of the Board of Tax Appeals and of the Tax Court for twenty-seven years.

William R. Roalfe, Professor of Law and Law Librarian of Northwestern University, was the guest of honor at the first fall meeting of the Society, held in the home of Mrs. Rebecca Notz, September 15, 1951. Mr. Roalfe spoke of his work as Director of the Survey of the Non-Law School Law Libraries which he is conducting under the auspices of the American Bar Association.

A CHECK LIST OF THE PUBLICATIONS OF THE SECTIONS OF THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

ERWIN C. SURRENCY, Law Librarian Temple University Law Library

The publication of the sections of the American Bar Association have been unused in the past, in spite of their great usefulness, because of their inaccessibility. Few law libraries have files of these publications and these files are scattered and incomplete. This check list is an attempt to aid the law librarian to gain some bibliographic control of this material.

This bibliography was first compiled from the holdings of Temple University Law Library and the Bidle Law Library of the University of Pennsylvania and the lists were then sent to the secretaries of the sections to check against their files. Portions of the final list were checked in the Columbia University Law Library by Mr. Harry Bitner. Regardless of the great care taken to make this list complete, many gaps will appear when checked against the holdings of other law libraries and for this reason, the compiler invites additions and criticisms.

The titles of the different items were taken from the title pages and where there were none, then from the front covers. Only the last numbered page is given. The name of the section as well as the title, American Bar Association, when appearing at the head of the title, has been omitted.

The primary object of this bibliography is to give a list of the published proceedings of the sections; hence all items are entered chronologically. The reports of individual committees are omitted except in cases where they are the only publications of the sections or where the information in these reports warrants inclusion because of the information they contain. There has been no attempt to list the miscellaneous publications of the American Bar Association, itself.

The following is a list of the sections covered in this compilation:

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
BAR ORGANIZATION
COMPARATIVE LAW BUREAU
COMMERCIAL LAW
CORPORATION, BANKING AND MERCANTILE LAW
INSURANCE LAW
INTERNATIONAL AND COMPARATIVE LAW
JUDICIAL ADMINISTRATION
JUNIOR BAR CONFERENCE
LABOR LAW
LEGAL EDUCATION
MINERAL LAW

9:30 A. M.-12 Noon	Sixth General Meeting—Royal York Hotel.

Fuller information about the Toronto meeting, hotel rates, reservations, etc. and reservation cards will be sent to each member in March or April. Hotel reservations may be made directly to the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, at any time. Meeting rooms are air-conditioned.

A program is being planned, which, it is hoped the members will find useful. This is to include a panel discussion on cataloging policies and practices and answers by experts to some problems met in law libraries.

The members of the local committee invite the whole membership to attend the meeting this year and suggest that Toronto might be a good place in which to spend "the Fourth." It will be quieter there than below the border. It is also a good starting place for drives to the north country and eastern Canada. Toronto's climate is unpredictable but in July it is generally sunny and warm, sometimes even hot. There was, unfortunately, a rainy afternoon on the third day of the 1940 convention but rain is not expected between the 7th and 10th of July this year.

CONSTITUTION OF THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF LAW LIBRARIES

(as amended June 27, 1951)

Article I. NAME.

The name of this Association shall be American Association of Law Libraries.

Article II. OBJECT.

The Association is established for educational and scientific purposes. It shall be conducted as a non-profit corporation to promote librarianship, to develop and increase the usefulness of law libraries, to cultivate the science of law librarianship and to foster a spirit of coöperation among the members of the profession.

Article III. MEMBERSHIP.

Any person or institution interested in law libraries may become a member of the Association by complying with the provisions of the by-laws.

Article IV. MEETINGS.

Meetings shall be held as provided in the by-laws.

Article V. OFFICERS AND COMMITTEES.

Section 1. Officers. The officers shall consist of a president, a president-elect, a secretary and a treasurer. The president-elect, the secretary and the treasurer shall be elected annually by the Association. The president-elect shall automatically become president after one year and shall so serve during the second year following his election. The president and president-elect shall serve without compensation, and the secretary and treasurer shall receive such compensation as the executive board shall provide.

Section 2. Duties of officers. The president, president-elect, secretary and treasurer shall perform the duties usually pertaining to their respective offices and such other duties as may be assigned by the executive board.

Section 3. Committees. There shall be such committees as the executive board shall from time to time create.

Section 4. Appointments. The president shall appoint all committee members unless the Association shall otherwise direct.

Section 5. Terms of office. All officers and members of committees shall serve until their successors are elected or appointed, and qualified.

Article VI. EXECUTIVE BOARD.

Section 1. There shall be an executive board of eight, consisting of the officers named in Article V. Section 1, the last retiring president, and three members whose term shall be three years, one of whom shall be elected annually by the Association. The duties of the executive board shall be those usually assigned to such boards in similar associations.

Section 2. The executive board shall have the power to fill any vacancy in elective offices except that of president, the person so elected by the executive board to serve the unexpired term. In the case of the death or resignation of the president of the Association the president-elect shall become president and shall serve until the end of his own elected term.

Article VII. CHAPTERS.

Chapters of the Association may be created and governed under such conditions and subject to such regulations as may be provided in the by-laws. Any local or regional law library association, which does not desire to become a chapter of the American Association of Law Libraries, may nevertheless, become affiliated with the Association under such conditions as may be provided in the by-laws, or, in the absence of such conditions, subject to such regulations as the executive board may establish.

Article VIII. AMENDMENTS.

Amendments to this constitution may be proposed by the executive board or by a petition signed by 10 per cent of the active members of the Association. Proposed amendments shall become effective when approved by two-thirds of the members voting in a ballot to be conducted by mail, in the manner provided in the by-laws.

Article IX. BY-LAWS.

Any by-law may be adopted, repealed, amended or suspended by a two-thirds vote of those present and voting at any meeting of the Association.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF LAW LIBRARIES BY-LAWS
(as amended June 27, 1951)

Article I. MEMBERSHIP.

Section 1. Classification of membership. Members of the Association shall consist of:

a. Active members. Any person officially connected with a law library, state library, or with a general library having a separately maintained law section, may become an active member upon payment of annual dues.

b. Institutional members. Any law library may become an institutional member upon payment of annual dues. The executive board is empowered to determine whether the institution applying for membership is a law library.

c. Associate members. Persons not connected with law libraries may be elected to associate membership by the executive board, and shall pay annual dues.

d. Sustaining members. Any person interested in law libraries may be elected to sustaining membership by the executive board, and shall pay annual dues.

e. Honorary members. The Association may, at any regular meeting, by vote of two-thirds of those present, elect non-members as honorary members.

f. Life members. The Association may at any regular meeting, by a vote of two-thirds of those present, elect to life membership those who have been members of the Association, but who have retired from active library work.

Section 2. Dues, rights and privileges. The right to hold an office shall be restricted to active members and the right of voting shall be restricted to active and life members. The transfer of an active or life member to sustaining membership shall not deprive the transferee of either the right to vote or, if otherwise eligible, of the right to hold office. All members shall receive the LAW LIBRARY JOURNAL as a part of their membership, provided that an institutional member may receive one copy for each membership for which it pays but does not designate an active member.

The dues to be paid shall be as follows:

a. Active members. The annual dues of active members shall be $7.00.

b. Institutional members. The annual dues of institutional members shall be based upon the number of full time persons doing work of a professional character employed by such institutional members, according to the following scale:

(1) Libraries having not more than two full time persons in their employ doing work of a professional character shall pay $14.00.

(2) Libraries having more than two full time persons in their employ doing work of a professional character shall pay annual dues at the rate of $7.00 for each such person on their staffs, provided, however, that no library shall be required to pay dues in excess of $70.00 per year in order to enjoy the full privileges of an institutional member.

Such persons on the staff of an institutional member as are designated by the librarian and for whom the institutional member has paid $7.00 each as its annual dues shall be entitled to active membership in the Association without payment of individual dues.

c. Associate members. The annual dues of associate members shall be $15.00.

d. Sustaining members. The annual dues of sustaining members shall be $50.00.

e. Honorary members. No dues.

f. Life members. No dues.

Section 3. The year for dues shall begin on June 1st, and the fiscal year of the Association shall begin on June 1st. The dues of members joining between January 1 and May 31, shall be one-half of the annual dues for that fiscal year.

Section 4. Members failing to pay dues after the expiration of six months and after due notice by the treasurer shall be suspended from membership by the treasurer. Suspended members may be reinstated at any time upon payment of the full current year's dues.

Article II. MEETINGS.

Section 1. An annual meeting of the Association shall be held at such time and place as the executive board shall designate.

Section 2. Special meetings may be held at such times and places as the executive board may elect or the Association direct.

Article III. NOMINATIONS AND ELECTIONS.

Section 1. Not later than October 1, of each year, the president shall appoint a nominating committee of five members, no one of whom shall be a member of the executive board, to nominate candidates for the elective positions of president-elect, secretary, and treasurer, and membership on the executive board. Two candidates for membership on the executive board shall be presented.

In the event that the president-elect cannot assume the duties of president and such fact is known prior to March 1st, the committee shall nominate a candidate for the office of president for the term of one year.

Names of candidates, together with their written acceptances, shall be presented by the nominating committee to the president in sufficient time to enable the president to inform the members of the nominations prior to April 1, either by publication in the LAW LIBRARY JOURNAL, or by mail.

Further nominations, except for the office of president, may be made upon written petition of two voting members in good standing. Such petitions, accompanied by written acceptances of the nominees, must be filed with the secretary of the Association not later than May 1.

The secretary shall prepare an official ballot, including nominations by petition. The professional position of each nominee shall appear on this ballot.

Section 2. Elections. The president shall appoint a committee on elections which shall have charge of the conduct of the annual election and the counting and tabulation of all votes cast.

Prior to May 15, the secretary shall mail a copy of the ballot to each voting member of the Association. Ballots shall be marked, sealed in plain envelopes, and returned to the secretary before June 10, in covering envelopes bearing on the outside the name and address of the member voting, together with the words "Official Ballot." The secretary shall check on a list of members the names of all members whose votes are received. The candidates receiving the largest number of votes shall be declared elected and shall be so reported at a business session of the annual meeting by the Committee on Elections. In case of a tie vote, the successful candidate shall be determined by lot conducted by the Committee on Elections. In case the annual meeting is held before June 10, or if no annual meeting should be held, the report of the Committee on Elections shall be printed in the first issue of the LAW LIBRARY JOURNAL, following the report of the Committee on Elections, or, in case the LAW LIBRARY JOURNAL has ceased to be published, shall be mailed to the members by the secretary before July 1.

Article IV. BALLOT UPON AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION

Proposed amendments to the constitution shall be submitted to the secretary, who shall send notice of the proposed amendments to the voting members 30 days prior to the meeting of the Association at which they will be presented for discussion. Ballots shall be mailed by the secretary to the members immediately following the publication of the issue of the LAW LIBRARY JOURNAL which contains the discussion of the proposed amendments (or, at the discretion of the executive board, at any time following the meeting at which the amendments were discussed, provided that the ballots are accompanied by a summary of the discussion). The executive board shall specify the time for closing the balloting, but in no case shall it be less than 30 days after the mailing of the ballots.

Article V. CHAPTERS

Any group consisting of ten or more active members of the Association, residing within the territory in which such chapter is desired, may apply for permission to establish a chapter of the Association by forwarding a petition in writing to the secretary at least 60 days before any regular meeting of the Association. The Executive Board shall, after having made a proper investigation, report favorably or adversely thereon to the members of the Association at the ensuing annual meeting, at which meeting the question of the establishment of such chapter shall be part of the regular order of business, provided, however, that no chapter shall be established except as hereinafter set forth:

(a) The formal name of every such local or regional organization must clearly indicate that it is a chapter of the Association.

(b) No chapter shall adopt a constitution or by-laws inconsistent with the constitution and by-laws of the Association or engage in any activity in conflict with the object of the Association.

(c) Of the dues collected from active members of the Association who are also members of a chapter, the chapter shall receive $1.00 and the Association shall receive $6.00.

(d) Chapters may accept as local or regional members persons engaged or interested in law library work, who wish to take part in local or regional activities only, and may collect separate dues from such persons, but such local and regional members shall at no time exceed fifty per cent of the membership of such chapter. Such local and regional members shall not be considered members of the American Association of Law Libraries, shall not hold the office of president of the chapter, and shall not have any of the privileges of members of the Association.

(e) The Executive Board may, after proper investigation, recommend to the membership at an annual meeting the discontinuance or suspension of any chapter which has ceased to be active.

ECONOMIC REGULATION OF SCHEDULED AIR TRANSPORT . . .

National-International

By

A. J. THOMAS, JR.

Associate Professor of Law

Southern Methodist University

Dallas, Texas

- A thorough exposition of the rules and regulations applying to the air transport industry.
- The economic controls under consideration include those—applicable to rate—operating privileges—business practices (issues of monopoly and competition) of the Airline companies—not only in regulation of domestic United States carriers but also as to international regulation existing and proposed.
- This book, based upon the actual practice of the Civil Aeronautics Board, throws light upon the problems that must be faced and solved if greater advances in air transport are to be achieved.
- It is possible by reference to this book to determine quickly the meaning of regulations which have been interpreted by the Board.
- Careful footnote citations enable the reader to refer to the original sources.
- The commentary is clear, objective and impartial and a detailed bibliography add inestimably to its value.

Were The Pilgrims Communists?

During their first two years in America the Pilgrims were deluded by their London bosses into trying a system of communal living.

It wasn't the Russian brand, of course — that hadn't been dreamed of. But there was no private ownership of land. No reward for the industrious.

Everything was everybody's — and at the same time, nobody's.

And what happened? Well — the hard working and capable were imposed upon by the idle and inefficient.

There were complaints and counter-complaints, bitterness, indolence, and finally open revolt.

And so, in the third year, it was decided to try another system. Each man was assigned his own piece of land and allowed to enjoy the fruits of his own labor.

The bountiful harvest that year was the start of a more abundant life for the Pilgrims, based on free enterprise and individual initiative.

Today, when millions of human beings in other countries have lost or forsaken these privileges, we at Shepard's salute the Pilgrims for teaching America more than three hundred years ago that the other way just won't work.
